

Beet Avalanche
AAS Edible Winner

For any non beet-lovers, this might just be the variety to change your mind! At least that's what happened with one AAS Judge who previously, pretty much despised beets. Now he states, "This beet has made me a believer!" Avalanche exhibits a mild, sweet taste with a uniform root shape and no reddish tinge, making for more attractive produce. Judges raved about the raw eating quality when they discovered there was no earthy beety taste, nor any bitter aftertaste. As for garden performance, there's hardly any vegetable easier or quicker to grow and in just 50 days, you too can have delicious white beets.

AAS® Winner Data

Genus species: Beta Vulgaris

Common name: Beet

Fruit flavor: Very sweet

Fruit Size: 2.75—3 inches

Fruit shape: Round

Fruit color: White

Plant type: Annual

Plant height: 12 inches

Plant width/spread: 6 inches

Plant habit: Bushy

Garden location: Full sun

Garden spacing: 15 seeds per foot, rows 12-18 inches apart

Number of fruits: 1

Length of time to harvest: 50 days from sowing seed

Disease resistances: Very good tolerance to Cercospora

Closest comparisons on market: Blankoma, Albino

ALL-AMERICA SELECTIONS

1311 Butterfield Road
Suite 310
Downers Grove, IL
60515

630-963.0770
www.aaswinners.com

Tested Nationally & Proven Locally®

www.aaswinners.com

